Hark The Rollinq  The Thunder

BY JANET JAGAN

According to the minutes of the Erecutive Committee of the People's Progressive Party - a point which I had not remembered until finding this old record - I was elected Editor of THUNDER at a meeting held on February 15, 1950. I continued as Editor until mid-1956 when Brindley Benm was elected to the post.

The first edition of THUNDER was published in Janmary 1950 , with the mastheud carrying the beautiful poem by William Morris, which has been on every edition of THUNDER since then: "Mark the rolling of the thunder: Lo the sun! And lo thereunder, Riseth rath, and hope and wonder." The price for the 12 page, $8 \times 6$ inch monthly publication was two cents

The name of the Party's official organ was chosen sometime Jate in 1949, when final details for the formation of the PPP were being formutated. The first page carried this announcement: "PAC has now become THUNDER THENDFR is the argan of the People's Progressive Party. Only with vour help can we realise our aim to reach at least 10.000 readers with progrescive loeal international news and views"

By May, 1954, THUNDER, which had that year moved from a monthly to a weekly and was now a four page, $14 \times 8$ inch publication, announced that its ciroulation was 12,000 . One week later, the announcement was mathe that it had gone up to 16,000 .

This jump in circulation was no doubt a result not only of the quality of the paper, which was the only people's fournal in the country, but also due to sympathy and solidarity. The April 24, 1954 issue had printed this: "Due to the closing down of Arcade Printery (the printers of THUNDFR) by the police and the subsequent action of guarding the Printery, THUNDER which was to come out on April 10th., was forced to be delayed until this date. We ask our thousands of readers and supporters to bear with us during this difficuit period".

The "difficult period" was that following the suspension of the constitution in October 1953, the occupation of the eountry by Dritish soldiers, eurfew and restriction laws, the harassment and jailing of Party members and the ongoing aim of destroying the Party, The printers of THUNDER were at that time being harassed and the printery was under 24 -hour police guard.

The fore-runner of THUNDER was the PAC Bulletin. the official publication of the Political Affairs Committee. This began in November 1946 and was published as a twice-monthly mimeographed news sheet. In Noventper. 1949 PAC in its third anniversary issue, went into s printed monthiy paper, of the same format as the first issue of THUNDER which followed this two months later. My fotme was listed as the person responsible for the printing of PAC, although, as far as I recall, it was a joint effort of the Committee

The first Editorial Board of TMUNDER, appointed at the same time I was elected Bditor, included Cheddi Jagan, Ashton Chase, Rudy Luck, Martin Carter, L. F S. Burnham, Sydney King and myself.

In the issue of April 1850, the "Aims and Prosramme" of the People's Progressive Party was pablished for the first time. In this declaration, the Party expresoed its aim of abolishing exploitation and oppression, economic erises, unemployment and war, which "will be achieved only by the socialist reorganisation of society" and pledsed itself to the task of winning a "free and independent Guiana. of building a just socialist society in which the industries of the country shall be socially and democratically owned and managed for the common good. a society in which security, pleut, peace and freedom shall be the heritage of all". This historical document was, if is beliened, the first ever fieclaration for the independence of Guyana.

THCNDER, up until it became a quarteriy theoretical and discussion journal in 1969 , under the editorship of the late Dr. Charles Jacoly Jry was a mini-nelrspape. carrying nems, riews ornciat doctments of the party, letters, party nous, etc Some of the glorious poemts of Nartin Carter were first printed in TITUNDER, as was this moving protest published on July 31. 1954 agatnst the oppressive British presence -
